NEW BILLS BROUGHT IN. THE CALL OF STATES RRINGS IN

The Probability of Tariff Legislation-Mr. Morrison's Great Unconcern-The President's Message Generally Discussed-A Dead Consequence of the President Message Generally Discussed Message Generally Discussed Message Generally Discussed Message Generally Discussed Message General Message G

WASHINGTON, December 7 .- [Special.] -Congress started off today by adding sixty-five bills to the twelve thousand introduced last session. Georgia was modest, and made no contribution of raw material when the call of states was had. It is evident that all this brief session can do will be to pass the general appropriation bills, a few private bills with especially strong backing, and possibly a few measures of general character such as

THE ELECTORAL COUNT BILL which the house now has under consideration. It is the opinion of many of the leaders in both houses that the present session is the best time to clear up the exciting uncortainties as to the methods of the electoral count, but there is a considerable difference in the positions of the senate and the house on this subject. Both have bills framed to protect what they claim as their respective prerogatives, and neither will yield without a stubborn contest. Mr. Caldwell of Tennessee, who has the house bill in charge, is hopeful that the senate may be induced to accept it without any material change, should the house pass it by a decided ma-

Judge Crisp and other members of the con-ference committee on the differences of the two houses on the inter-state commerce regulation, think it very likely that a compromise bill will be agreed on and passed at this session.

TARIFF LEGISLATION.

The strong recommendations of the president and the secretary of the treasury in favor of the immediate revision of the tariff, have had a decided effect in both houses, but almost any opposition could defeat action on this great question at a time when full discussion is clearly impossible. Mr. Morrison, who has ridden this hobby so persistently for the past three years, appears to have dismounted. He is strangely different to the prospective efforts at tariff legislation at this session, and has the air of a man who is disheartened at his own failure and is willing to let others try their hands in the business. It was reported that Mr. Randall would have a tariff bill to present early in this session, but there is, no indication that he intends to try to lead a movement for revision at this time. Senater Van Wyck's renewed declaration in favor of placing sugar and lum-ber on the free list is taken by the low tariff men as an assurance that they can count on a considerable republican support in both houses. Senator Morrill, in his speech next Thursday, is expected, however, to make a strong appeal to his party to stand firm against any interference with the present tariff at this session. Sunset Cox is preparing a speech in favor of the immediate revision. He aspires to the chairmanship of the ways and means committee, which Mr. Morrison's retirement will leave as the most tempting prize in the arrangement of the committees of the next house. Cox has generally supported low tariff movements in congress, but has never been known as an extremist. During the fiere contest over the Morrison horizontal bill he made a speech an hour long, and at its conclusion was asked by a friend to tell him confidentially which side he intended to help by his remarks. Mr. Morrison has been annoyed by the report that he would be a candidate for the clerkship of the next house. He and his friends think that his retirement is only temporarily, and that he will surely be returned to the fifty-first congress. Nobody meed have faith in the rumor that the president has his eye on him as Secretary Manning's successor. It is not certain that Mr. Manning will resign at all, and it is known that the president will insist on his remaining in the eabtnet just as long as his health will permit. The secretary is nei-ther better nor worse than he has been for some months past, but he is doing more real work now than any other man in the cabinet.

RELIEVING EX-CONFEDERATES. Congressman Herbert, of Alabama, has introduced a bill to remove the disabilities of the ex-confederates, and to make them eligible for appointment into the United States army and navy. In conversation today the congressman said that the bill was the outgrowth of the Cutting offair.

"My people down there," he said, "large numbers of them, in fact, were so much incensed over the Cutting episode that they volunteered to organize troops to invade Mexico if necessary. A large proportion of them found they could not enlist under their country's flag, as they had formerly served the confederacy. Their complaints to me suggested the idea of this bill. Now, in the case of war with a foreign power, the government would be very glad to avail herself of all the ex-confederates. Their experience would be of great benefit, for they would add trained officers to both the army and navy. To pass this bill, after a war had been declared, would be a necessity and would then be considered by the south as an act of expediency. If, on the contrary, the bill should become a law in time of peace, it would be accepted as a gracious act well worthy of a forgiven nation, and would, I believe, go far toward healing the still rankling sores and animosities that lie, hidden by force of human nature, in the heart of many a southerner."

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE. The good impressions, created by the president's message on its first appearance, deepen as that decument comes to be more maturely considered. It has been much discussed at the capitol today, and in the hotel corridors tonight. The unanimous democratic opinion is strongly complementary, while the very objections which the republicans bring to it by their flimsiness prove the strength of the message. filmsiness prove the strength of the message. The New York papers this morning were remarkably agreed as to its merits. The Sun admitsits strength. The Herald pronounces it "A truly and soundly American state paper." The Times says: "It is unpretentions, patriotic straightforward and business like." The Tribune says: "It is not precisely a great message but in the main fairly sets forth the opinions of the party which made Mr. Cleveland president." The Star pronounces it "Clear and decisive, complete and comprehensive." The cisive, complete and comprehensive." The World admits that "It is conceived in a patriot is spirit, and written with ordinary clearness. Congressman Price, of Wisconsin, who died at his house in Eau Clare, will be the only de-ceased member for many years whose funeral will not be attended by a congressional com-mittee. Both the senate and house have appointed committees to attend the funeral, but they will not go for two reasons. The main consideration is the fact that Mr. Price always, in congress, opposed the sending of such committees at the public expense, as an unjust use of the public money, and was known to be perfectly honest in his opeosition to such expenditures. Besides the severe weather makes it very doubtful whether the committee could arrive in time for the funeral.

Mr. Morrill offered the following resolution: Resolved, That the promise of making any revision of the tariff in a spirit or fairness to all interest, not to injure domestic industries, but to promote their healthy growth so that any change of haw must be, at every step, regardful of the labor and capital involved and without depriving American labor of the ability to compete successfully with foreign labor and without imposing lower rates of duty than will be ample to cover any increased cost of production which may exist in consequence of a higher rate of wages prevailing in this country appears so obviously hopeless and impracticable that any further attempt at tevision by the present congress in controvention to the foregoing cardinal declarations are to be regarded as inexpedient and detrimental to the revival of the trades and industries of the country.

Mr. Call introduced a bill to appropriate $100,000 for the construction of a deep water channel in Tampa Bay, Florida, and also a bill to appropriate $500,000 for continuing work upon the bar at the mouth at St. John's river, Florida.

Mr. Morrill's resolution was laid over until tomorrow.

Mr. Dayses offered the following receivation.

Mr. Dawes offered the following resolution Mr. Dawes offered the following resolution, which was also laid over and ordered printed: Resolved, That the committee on finance be instructed to inquire and report, as soon as practicable, what specific reduction can be made in customs duties and internal taxes which will, in their judgments reduce receipts to the necessary and economical expenditures of the government, withhut impairing the prosperity and development of oo me industries or the compensation of home labor On motion of Mr. Hoar, the Pacific railroad funding bill was made, the special order for funding bill was made the special order for Tuesday, December 21, at 2 o'clock, with the same rights as it now has.

Mr. Ingalls made a statement as to with holding from homestead entry of Atlantic and Pacific railroad lands in New Mexico, declared forfeited by the act of July 6th, 1886, intimat ing that the fault lay with the commissioner of public land, who seemed to regard every pre-emptor as a kleptomaniac, bound on pillage and plunder, and he offered a resolution (which was adopted), directing the secretary of the interior to inform the senate whether such lands had been restored to entry, (if not so restored) the occasion of delay.

On motion of Mr. Frye, the select committees of the senate as they existed on the day of last adjournment were revived, and continued during the present session.

Mr. Blair gave notice that he would tomor-

Messrs Spooner, Manderson and Blackburn were appointed a committee to attend Mr

Price's funeral.

The senate then adjourned. YESTERDAY IN THE HOUSE. Security for Bank Circulation-The Electoral Count, Etc.

Washington, December 7.—After reading the journal, by unanimous consent, the states were called for the introduction of bills and duced and referred resolutions, when the following were introduced and referred:

Mr. Herbert also introduced a bill authorizing state officers to issue writs of attachment returnable to the circuit court of the United States.

By Mr. Adams of Illinoiso, to change the law in relation to the amount of United States bonds required to be kept on deposit by national banks as security for their circulating notes. It provides that banks having a capital of $300,000 or less shall not be required to keep on deposit bonds in excess of due-tenth of their capital stock as security for their circulating notes, and such of those banks as have on deposit bonds in excess of this amount are authorized to reduce their circulation by a authorized to reduce their circulation by a deposit of lawful money, as provided by law; provided, that the amount of such circulating notes shall not exceed, in any case, ninely per cent of the par value of the bonds deposited as herein provided. fore, or may hereafter be retired from circulation by reason of payment of any bonds held by national banks to secure their circulation.

By Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, for the promotion of Commodors F. Truxton, retired.

Mr. Reagan, of Texas, offered a resolution fixing the 16th of December for the consideration of business reported from the committee

tion of business reported from the committee on commerce.

At the suggestion of Mr. Morrison, the usual clause giving priority to revenue and appropriation bills was inserted, but as Mr. Reagan would not agree to accept also prior special orders, Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, objected to the consideration of the resolution and it was referred to the committee on rules.

Committees were then called, but no reports were submitted, and in the morning hour Mr. Bragg, of Wisconsin, on behalf of the committee on military affairs, called up for action the senate hill for the relief of graduates of the military acadeny. It enacts into a law what is now a custom, of paying cadets salary as lieu tenants from the date of graduation to the time of regular assignment as officer in the army.

The morning hour having expired, Mr. Caldwell, of Tennessee, called up for consideration the electoral count bill, which was a special continuing order.

ontinuing order.

Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, antagonized the mo-

ontinuing order.

Mr. Hatch, of Missouri, antagonized the motion with another providing for the consideration of a bill to enlarge the powers and duties of the department of agriculture. The house, however, decided by a vote of 101 to 27, to consider the senate electoral count bill with the proposed amendments.

In advocating the bill Mr. Caldwell, chairman of the committee having jurisdiction of the subject, explained that the object was to prescribe a mode in which the count or electoral vote was to be made and to supply an omission which existed in the constitution. The passage of the bill would settle all questions which arose from time to time as the to electoral count. It would decide that the power to count the vote did not reside in the president of the senate; that it resided in the two houses of congress, not merely a ministerial power, but a power to count and consequently, to decide the legality of the votes to be counted; that the action of the two houses should be separate upon all questions arising during the count, but joint as to the result, thus preserving the dignity and rights of heath bedies the concentrate and the consequent of the section of the two houses are should be separate upon all questions arising during the count, but joint and the first contents the consequent of the section of the two houses should be separate upon all questions arising during the count, but joint and the consequent of the section of the two houses should be separate upon all questions arising during the count, but joint and the consequent of the section of the two houses should be separate upon all questions arising during the count, but joint and the consequent of the section of the two houses should be separate upon all questions arising during the count, but joint and the consequent of the section of the two houses should be separate upon all questions arising during the count. as to the result, thus preserving the dignity and rights of both bodies by conceding to each equal and concurrent power without a merger of the lesser body into the numerically greater. The house then adjourned.

The attorney-general briefly urges the importance of legislation on the following matters, the necessity for which was pointed out in his last annual report: Fees for marshals in the territories; the pay of deputy marshals; re-vision of the fee bill; the substitution of a fiscal for the calendar year; chief supervisors of elec-tions; protection to civil officers and witnesses;

fees of witnesses and jurors in the territories, and re-organization of the jury system in the District of Columbia. He devotes a chapter to the subject of United States prisoners, and the general question of convict labor, and advocates the building of a government penitentiary and reformatory at an early day. He recommends the appointment of a commission to inquire into the matter. He also renews the recommendation

He also renews the recommendation that authority be given judges of United States courts to sentence, in their discretion, prisoners convicted of first offenses to such reformatories or graded prisons as the attorney-general may select. He also urges the necessity of additional United States jails, and mentions Atlanta, Ga., and Louisville, Ky., as cities where such buildings are much needed. The number of United States prisoners in custody June 30, 1886, was 5,929. The attorney general calls attention to the unsatisfactory condition of attention to the unsatisfactory condition of revenue litigation in the southern district of New York and commends the suggestion of the Supplementary legislation respecting the restoration of the court of records is strongly urged by the attorney general as necessary for the preservation of records of great value. The attorney general recommends that the salaries of assistant attorneys in the department of justice be increased and equal-ized, and that the salary of the examiner of claims in the department of state be increased 1685.000.

The total amount estimated, as required for all expense of the government, is $325,185,794, which is $14,468,759 less than the sum called for in the estimates submitted last year and $3,272,691 less than the aggregate of the appropriations for the present fiscal year.

Estimates for the river and harbor improvements aggregate $30,281,749. These estimates are not furnished as a part of the "annual estimates for public service," but are inserted in the book of estimates as the amount, according to the chief of engineers, "that can be profitably expended in the next fiscal year on each of the uncompleted works mentioned." Governor Lee Refuses to Either Pardon or Con mate the sensence Cloverius Informed of His Fate, and How it Affected Him-A Re-spite Expected-Original News,

RICHMOND, Va., December 7.- Governor Lee today sent a letter to the counsel of Cluverius who is now under sentence of death for the murder of Fannie Lillian Madison, in which he says that he has given to their statements and to all papers and petitions presented for execu-tive elemency in behalf of the prisoner, the careful consideration which their importance demanded. The governor then adds:

The prisoner came from the judicial to the executive department of the government, marked 'guilty' by judges and jury. Starting at that point, therefore, I have been diligently studying the record, while industriously seeking information and evidence from all other sources which might conclusively prove to my mind that the verdict of the court was an error and that, therefore, the sentence pronounced by the court of hustings and affirmed by Virginia's highest court. must be seta-side or communed. With an earnest desire to faithfully execute, without fear or favor, the laws of the state impartially to all with the most profound sympathy for those upon whose hearts this blow must falt, with a clear conscience that I am discharging my duty to the people of my state, as God has given me strength to see it. I now write you to inform you that I have not been able to reach a different conclusion from that held by the courts, and, therefore, the case of Thomas J. Chiverins is not one, my opinion, to call for executive interference either by the exercise of the pardoning power or by commutation of sentence.

The governor's decision was conveyed to jail by Judge W. W. Crump, senior counsel, and his son, Beverly T. Crump, who acquainted the prizoner with it. Cluverius stood the ordeal with the same fortitude which has generally characterized his conduct since his arrest and during his trial. After counsel left him, how

After counsel left him, how-ever, it was plainly apparent that the awful news he had heard had a marked effect and that it was as much as he could do to maintain his wonted composure. Shortly after counsel left the cell, several re-porters visited the jail and made an effort to see the prisoner, but when informed of their object by the "death watch," Cluverius said.

said:
"I do not want to see anybody." He was seated in an arm chair, with his elbows on his knees and his chin buried in his hands. Seeing the reporters at the door of the cell, he changed his position and endeavored to appear calm and collected, but it was evident that the blow had struck home. Counsel presented a petition for respite to the governor-this evening. No time was named, as that is left to the governor's discretion. It is the general impression that a respite of thirty days

Messrs. Gemper, Thompson, Miller, Emerich, Edmiston and Verchner, from the legislative committee, submitted a long report under the head of "Federation and Knights, Strikes and Political Action." The committee says:

The fifth annual congress in executive session considered the relations between the trades unions and the Knights of Labor, and instructed the secretary to correspond with the executive officers of the lauter body in reference to the matter. Secretary Foster, obeying his instructions, wrote to Mr. Powderly and Secretary Turner, and elicited replies from both. That of Mr. Powderly deserves special notice on account of its tone and the spirit of fairness pervading its contents, but the continued hostility of the Knights of Labor to the trades unions leads us to suppose that they were promises to the enr. broken to the hopes, or that Powderly's influence for good was sadly overestimated by the delegates to the last session of the federation. The question of strikes, is, perhaps, in the present movement of labor organizations, one that is not wholly, we must confess, guided by that intelligence which we think the subject deserves. We do not, as a federation or as individuals, wish to be understood to be advocates of strikes. On the contrary, it is known that the best regulated trades unions have least strikes, yet white we deprecate this measure of warfare in the labor movement, we cannot and will not join the general hue and cry for their condemnation. Strikes are bad, no doubt. Not only are they so when they are failures, but also, though not so bad, when they are successful. Therefore, to know when to strike and when to not strike are questions of the highest importance; also when a strike is once gone into, how to conduct the same is of great moment. We believe, when a strike

Mr. Yompers moved that the legislative committee meet with the committee of the trade's union conference, to agree on a plan for the carrying out of an amalgamation of all trades unions.

This brought on considerable discussion, in which the Knights' of Labor was discussed as an organization, and it was finally decided that the Knights' of Labor had nothing to do with it. The motion for the appointment of a commit-tee was adopted, and the federation adjourned till temorrow.

FROM MR. POWDERLY. The following was read tonight:

Philadelphia, Pa., December 7.—To P. J. MacGuirc, secretary trades' union conference: I have selected a committee of five, consisting of biothers Howes, Hall, McFedly, Orrington and Zandt, to discuss past grievances between the trades unions and the Knights of Labor, and pave the way for the avoidance of future ones. Fraternally yours,

A PANIC IN THE OIL MARKET.

PITTSELEO, Pa., December 7.—A sudden and heavy decline in oil today caused a panic at the exchange and the dumping of a large lot of certificates on the market. The session opened with a weak feeling, the "bearish" field news having a depressing influence. The first sale was made at $0, and a gradual decline to 77½ followed. Prices then remained without material change until shortly before noon, when the bears made a terrific ouslaught on the market and values dropped in a very few when the bears made a terrific onslaught on the market and values dropped in a very few minutes to 71½, eight cents and a half below the opening. A scene of the wildest excitement ensued. Holders of long oil did everything in their power to stem the current, but without avail, and becoming panic-stricken commenced unloading. At 71½, however, the decline was checked, and with a strong effort the market railied to 73½ at 1 p. m. Only one small failure occurred here. The money difference is not known. The bottom also dropped out in New York, and oil fell to 72, railied and closed at 74, after opening at 80.

Questions had arisen which gave the conservative a common interest with a section of the liberal and would force them to adopt some reformal the government and liberal unionists. The question of municipal reform, instance, was one which to unionists should give the government an opportunity to consider.

Referring to the situation in Ireland, Lor Hartington said the present anti-rent agitation was not spontaneous. It had, he maintaines been created for political purposes and was simply anarchy. It is currently reported, and is evidently true, that there is to be a considerable change in the districts. For several years mission money has had to be appropriated to keep up some of the presiding elders on the weak districts. By the proposed changes only two districts will be helped, and these are Gainesville and Dahlonega. The change will astonish many in Atlanta, The Marietta and Newman districts will be absorbed to strengthen other districts, while Atlanta will become the seat of two districts. It appears that there will be the North Atlanta will become the sear of two districts. It appears that there will be the North Atlanta district, taking that portion of the city north of the state and Georgia railroads. It will have a good, strong territory. rietta. It will have a good, strong territory.
The South Atlanta district will probably contain Trinity, Evans, St. Paul's, Park Street, Asbury, and Pierce churches, with the territory lying in the former Newnan district, giving this a fine field.

Several of the preachers are going to transfer to the west. Rev. D. F. C. Timmons has had a to the west. Rev. D. F. C. Timmons has had a remarkably successful year at Barnesville, and is one of our ablest young men; has been transferred to Shearn church in Houston, Texas. Rev. John M. Armstrong, a young man of great success and fine promise, has already received his appointment in Texas. Rev. Lundy H. Harris, just received into the conference on trial, also is to be transferred. It is expected several others will go west as preachers are needed in that rapidly growing section.

R. B. Reppard, of Savannah, is here, and he eys that the Sunday-school work of Georgia is booming. All over the state there is great activity. A few days ago he visited Berrien county Sunday-school association and found twenty flourishing schools, where twenyears ago there was but one, and where five years ago there was but one, and where five years ago there was but four. The organization of associations in each county is doing much to accure Sunday-school facilities for every child. The demand of President Reppard is that every child in Georgia shall be in a Sunday-school on Sunday. These noble laymen are doing much for Christ's Kingdom. and Mr. Butler.

Augusta, Ga., December 7.—[Special.]—
Some days ago, there was considerable trouble among the operatives at Vaucluse factory, a few miles from here in Carolina, caused by the discharge of Robert Butler, master workman of Vaucluse ascembly, Knights of Labor. The matter was published in the Charleston News and Courier, and Mr. Hickman, president of the factory, replied by saying that the trouble had all been remedied, and, in fact, it amounted to nothing, being only gotten up by Butler to create dissatisfaction among the operatives, and saying he concocted the scheme for the purpose of elevating himself in the estimation of his fellow oporatives. Butler replied to this by giving Hickman the lie, saying his whole statement was false. Hickman today says he will say nothing more in regard to the matter, except that his statements were true, and if necessary can be proven, The whole trouble, Butler says, was because the superintendent treated the femiles employed in the mill in an indecent manner, and he was trying to step if for which he was trying to step if or which he was trying to step if or which he was trying to step if for which he was trying to step if or which he was trying to step if the step in the step in the

TO HANG AT LAST.

Preston Valentine's Doom Now Sealed---To Hang January 21.

Preston Valentine, the negro who foully murdered old man Vales, night watchman at the street-car stables, in September, 1884, was resentenced in the superior court today, to be hanged. The execution will take place on January 21 next. The murder of this old man was a most inhumans act, the villain having allow uary 21 next. The murder of this old man was a most inhumane act, the villain having slipped up behind him in the dead of the night and brained with a pick. He then saturated the body with kerosene oil, burning it to a charred mass, to hide his foul crime, and all for $38. He was captured in March last, found guilty of murder in the superior court; the case was carried up to the supreme court, who sustained the verdict of the lower court. Thus he will pay the penalty of his crime on the gallows.

Twenty-Six True Bills Returned.

OGLETHORPE, Ga., December 7.—[Special.]
Macon superior court has adjourned, after a warm week for evil doers. The celebrated case of The State vs. Tom Baisden, alias Tom Baseof The State vs. Tom Baisden, alias Tom Base-more, charged with murder, resulted in a ver-dict of guilty, with recommendation to impris-onment for life. The state was represented by solicitor general Hudson and J. N. Mott, and the defendant by Hon. J. M. DuPree, John W. Haygood. F. F. Snead and J. L. McCrory. Every inch of ground was contested by both sides, and the defendant's attorneys seem satis-fied with the victory they have won in saving the old man's neck. The grand jury returned twenty-six true bills. twenty-six true bills.

The President's Kitchen Organ. The New York Star aspires to the noto riety that a tramp gets by repeating with a wink the kitchen gossip that is flung out to him with the broken victuals. It assumes to give the private reasons that move every prominent man to differ with or criticise President Cleveland-claiming the meanwhile to be the special organ of the white

Its latest effort in this illustrious direction is aimed at Mr. Dana, of the Sun. It charges that Mr. Dana opposes certain views of the president because the president intimated that he was going to invite Mr. Dana to dinner and then neglected to do so. There is reason to believe that Mr. Dorsheimer really has the car of some of the underlings of the president's household, for Mr. Dana states that Mr. Manning did once ask him if he would accept an invitation to dine with the president, to whom he replied that he would be glad to do so. Probably the indiscreet underling who imparted this information to Mr. Dorsheimer will be shocked at the gross and indelicate use made of it, and close his lips to that gentleman hereafter. We hope so, for we have no hope that Mr. Dorsheimer will have either the discretion or The taste to fail to use anything he may be able to pick up about the purlieus of the white house.

Why We Die.

Lovers of imaginative literature should read the health articles in the magazines and newspapers. Such reading may fill the minds of nervous people with gloomy fore bodings, but a well-balanced man will get more solid fun out of the wild ravings of the health cranks than he will be able to find anywhere else. We are told now that we must give up milk because it is liable to produce typhoid fever. Beef must go because it is the cause of consumption. Pork is not to be thought of an account of trichinoses. Even potatoes are placed under the ban because it is now believed that they cause catarrh.

It is possible that some well-meaning but ignorant health reformer, desiring to avoid these evils, will rashly resolve to limit himself to bread and water and fruit. Here be will run against another difficulty. He will have to be on his guard against adulterated 1 flour and baking powders. In the matter of water, too, he must exercise great caution. It is asserted by some chemists that water contains a very small per centage of alcohol, and if this fact should ever be established beyond a doubt, the prohibitionists will, of course, feel called upon to suppress waterdrinking.

To follow the directions of the health eranks is an impossibility. It may be death to violate their rules, but it will certainly kill us to follow them. The only way to do is to run a go-as-you-please schedule. The man who defies the health cranks will probably outlive them all.

The President and the Tariff. It is worthy of note that the president, in that portion of his message which refers to the necessity of readjusting the tariff, is careful to steer clear of the wild and incoherent demands of the free-traders. The western representatives of this class declare that all democrats who are not in favor of tearing up the tariff system by the roots are traitors to the party and should be scourged out of it with a lash composed of scorpions and Spanish-fly plasters, provided the scorpions and plasters are admitted free of duty. Mr. Cleveland, on the other hand, while arging a readjustment of the tariff, suggests that it should be in the nature of a compromise carried out cautiously and conserva tively. "A sound public policy," he says, "requires that such of our citizens as have built up large and important industries under present conditions should not be, suddenly and to their injury, deprived of advantages to which they have adapted their busi-

This is well enough as far as it goes, but the democratic platferm, on which Mr. Cleveland was elected, and which was the result of a prolonged consultation between representative democrats, prescribes the exact limits of tariff readjustment. That platform declares that all tariff reduction at tempted by the democratic party 'shall keep in view the difference between the wages of American workingmen and of European pau-per labor. Though the western free-traders persist in ignoring this plank in the demoeratic platform, the democratic members of congress cannot afford to ignore it.

The Internal Revenue System. In the course of his message, the president referring to the necessity of reducing the sur-plus revenue, says: "It has been the policy of the government to collect the principal part of its revenues by a tax upon imports, and no change in this policy is desirable. This is good democratic doctrine, but the fact remains that an immense sum of money is collected from the people annually by means of the internal revenue tax, which is a war measure, pure and simple. Not only is the law under which this operates a war measure, but it is the medium of oppression, injustice and even murder.

It is a law, too, which stands in the way of tariff reduction, for the nearer the duties on imports are brought to a revenue basis the arger will be the surplus in the treasury with the internal revenue still in operation The free-traders make a great outcry when ever there is a proposition to repeal this law, for they feel that if it is continued in operation they will have a more reasonable excuse for puting the tariff on a free-trade basis. t genuine revenue reformers ought to be aware of the fact that if the tariff is reduced to the revenue point, the excise law will have to be repealed

This is a matter the president neglected to touch upon in his message. One of Blaine's Denkey Carts.

In Mr. Ailen Thorndike Rice's monthly newspaper, the North American Review, person who signs himself Arthur Richmond, has an open letter to the president. It will be remembered that this person has addressed several open letters to distinguished people, and there has been a pretense on the part of certain republican newspapers that these letters created quite a sensation and that there was considerable inquiry as to the identity of the author. We say pretence, for it seems to us to be absolutely impossible that the tame and colorless contributions of Arthur Richmond are capable of producing any sensation in a sane mind except one of profound pity and contempt. According to the New York Star, Mr. Allen Thorndike Rice, by means of various winks and nods and lifting of the eyebrows, such as the melancholy Prince Hamlet warned his friends against, has caused it to be understood that he is the author of these silly letters. The Star has a theory that Rice could never have written them the truth of the matter seems to be that nebody but Rice could have written them. Their style is vulgar and cheap. There is no trace of the scholar or gentleman in them.

There could be nothing, for instance mor pusillanimous or picayunish than the criticisms of Mr. Arthurondyke Richmond Rice makes on the president. He is mad because Mr. Cleveland has turned republicans out of office and angry because he has not turned them all out. He is mad because the democratic majority in congress has been reduced, and angry because all the democrats were not defeated.

In short, Mr. Arthurondyke Richmond Rice appears to be a shallow fellow who is anxious to show that he has intellect enough to drive one of Brother Blaine's donkeycarts in the next campaign. But what better donkey-cart would Mr. Blaine want than the North American Review?

THE Wisconsin Central railroad is against the "tip" system by which the sleeping-car porters bleed the public. The road, which operates its own sleeping cars, has issued an order absolutey prohibiting its porters from receiving any fees whatever upon pain of instant dismissa The only exception made is that, when especially requested to do so, they may black a passenger's boots, but for this service they are no to charge a fee exceeding 10 cents. Simultan. eous with the promulgation of this order the salaries of the porters were readjusted on basis which gives them living wages, and thus obviates the plea that they are compelled to rely in a measure upon the occupants of their cars for their means of support.

A BIG swindle of a new order has just been successfully perpetrated in Mexico. Patti was to sing for a season of five nights in the National theater in the city of Mexico. The concerts were extensively advertised and a man who called himself Mayer and who pretended he was a brother of Henry E. Abbey's friend and associate Marcus Mayer appeared as the agent of the great singer. He was armed with many letters of indorsement and no one dreamed that he was an imposter. When seats were put on sale the swindler took in about $25,000 for the season, every ticket being sold. The governor of the district became suspicious and sent a policeman ostensibly "to guard" the agent, bu reality to see that the money was deposited in the hotel safe. The swindler hood-winked the policeman and skipped with the boodle.

THE GOVERNOR'S RECEPTION.

A Brilliant Event at the Mansion Last Night. The reception last evening by Governor Gordon at the mansion to the members of the general assembly and to the citizens generally was brilliant success. Notwithstanding the inclement weather, more than two hundred called during the evening. The mansion presented a bright con-trast to the outer world, and those who called were repaid by an extremely pleasant evening. The guests were need by Messrs. B. H. Hill, Jr.; W. T. Harrison and Henry Cabaniss, and presented the governor and Mrs. Gordon, and to Miss Gordon, Miss Maddox, Miss Hammond, Miss Cocke, Miss Colquitt, Miss Pace, Miss Bleckley and Mrs. Overby who assisted in receiving. For some time the guests mingled together, and party issues and political economy were forgotten in the pleasant society of those present. At ten o'clock the guests were conducted to the dining room, and a delight-al repast was served.

The reception was quite a pleasant one in every respect. It was entirely informal, and General and Mrs. Gordon, assisted by Miss Gordon and the young ladies present entertained so pleasantly that all regretted when the time for departure

Judging from the receptions which have been given at the mansion since Governor Gordon's election, it is evident that during his term the mansion will be the hub of the social circle of the state. It is certain that while the receptions he has given have both been informal, that they have seldom, if ever, been surpassed in the state for real enjoyment and happiness

Our Winnie Captures Them All.

From the New York Sun. SYRACUSE, December 4.—The stay of Miss Winnie Davis in Syracuse has been cut short by a friend in New York who insists that an engagement made when she was there, three weeks ago, shall be kept This brings Miss Davis to New York on the 10th inst., and will detain her until after the holidays. It is not thought probable that she will return to Syracuse. The most noteworthy compli-ment paid to the "Daughter of the Confederacy" since her stay in this city was her entertainment by the cooking club called the "Gordon Blue," which is representative of the best families of Syracuse. The reception was held at the residence of Mrs. Charles W. Andrews, daughter-in-law of Judge Charles An-drews, of the court of appeals. The other guest of the "Gordon Blue" on this occasion was Miss Cor-nelia Bullock, daughter of ex-Governor Bullock, of

MISS KATE FORSYTH.

A Splendid Performance of "Marcelle" Last Night. America has given to the stage no emotions actress more thoroughly versatile and fascinating than Miss Kate Forsyth, who presented the comedy drama "Marcelle" at DeGive's last night. The play than Miss Kate Forsyth, who presented the comety drama "Marcelle" at Declive's lastinght. The play was put on the stage with an attention to detail that was gratifying and quite unusual here. The costuming was the most superb that has probably ever been seen in-Atlanta. All the dresses worn by the entire company were imported especially for use in this play, and were in the height of the latest Parisian fashion. Miss Forsyth, as "Marcelle," "the wronged yet faithful and loving wife, was all that this most exacting role required, and at the end of the third and fourth acts there were many moist eyes in the audience. Miss Forsyth was called before the curtain several times and received unstinted applause; she added new honors to those she had won before in the beautiful play "Faithful Hearts," and established herself as a great favorite in this city. The support was remarkably good throughout; in fact, there is not a poor actor in the company. Mr. Frank Losse, the leading support, was excellent, and fully justifies his metropolitan reputation. Taken all in ail, Miss Forsyth's company is by far the best that has visited Atlanta this season. Our theater-goers will long remember with sincere pleasure the plays "Faithful Hearts" and "Marcelle," and will ever be ready to give Miss Forsyth a most cordial wel-come to the gate city.

Baird's Mammoth Minstrels.

Baird's Mammoth Minstrels. Only one night and matinee, next Saturday We all remember their visit last year. They were good, and their instrumental music the best we ever had in our city. The Ciucinnati Enquire says of their visit there:

"A minstrel organization, new to this city, ifinder the management of I. W. Baird, drew very large audiences at both performances at Heuck's oper house yesterday. The troupe proved an excellent one, and every member thereof quickly established himself a favorite. The features of the olio were all new and good, some of them never equalled in this city. The royal hand-bell ringers, who sing sweetly to the accompaniment of a chime of silver bells, was a novelty that is indeed a creditable in novation in ministrely. To sum up the matter, the whole show made a decided hit, and will be welcomed again by Cinciunati theater-goers." says of their visit there:

Caught on the Run.
If you stand on Windsor Hill, near the reservoir and look away down toward ithe southeast, across miles of swamp lands that fringe the low banks of the Ocmulgee, you can see a range of tree-clad hills rising in an undulating way to the misty norizon. Among them one conical mound rises abruptly to a considerable height, and you can see that its top is flattened, although it is twenty miles away. This is the famous Brown's Mound, Twiggs county. It has stood there for no one knows how many centuries. It is generally supposed to be, in the main, of artificial origin. It was no doubt erected by a war-like race who used it for the double purpose of a lookout and as a home of Overlooking the great reaches of fertile lands from the "Ocmulgee Fields" at the base of the hills to Buzzard Roost, the Flint river bottoms, the regions round about Fort Valley and Traders Hill, it was a point of vantage from which the approach of a hosile party might be observed, and a surprise prevented. Even now, in its dilapidated one can see that the fortifications were so arranged that vast storehouses might be constructed therein, and there was ample provision for water from liv-ing springs. The old mound is hoary with age and fraught with the mystery of ages lost to history.

I can well imagine how the excited population of that pre-historic city, rushed to the citadel when the lookout warned them of the approach of the mighty mastodon. The swarthy faced men strung their bows and poised their spears for the chase. Scouting parties marked the movements of the mammoth game whose ponderous footfalls shook the earth as he moved in awful majesty across the olein Prohably it was days before they forced the chase. And then the triumphant return of the stalwart warriors, when the city turned out to to meet them in all the wild abandon of barbarie

Sometimes I sit and gaze on that ancient landmark, and the vision of a white-haired man with moorish features, bent with age, and eyes that glow with prophetic fire, appears before me. I can magine that from the summit of you mound he is watching the sun go down. There are vague rumors aflost. Couriers have arrived in the town and report that the race of invaders of whom tidings lave been brought for many months, are every where successful, and are marching on the capitol It is what the old seer has expected for many year It is one of the traditions that has grown to be a prophecy, that the red men will finally come in and occupy the land, and the dark race must pass forever from the face of the earth,

In mute adoration the old man fixes his burning gaze on that god whom he worships. The sinking sun flashes a flood of red light around the old man, whose form is glorified with the brilliant halo, and then drops behind the horizon. There is a great commotion among the inhabitants of the lower city. Men laden with supplies stagger up the steep paths and deposit them inside the wall. The mighty men of the tribe have donned their war harness, and gone out to meet the invaders. There is wafted on the evening breeze, murmurs of strife and tumult far away. Nearer and more distinct like the rush of mighty waters, it comes. Finally the rushing squadron come dashing into the town, torn and bleeding, broken and defeated, while the savage yells of the foe add unmeasured terror to the agony of defeat. These have been men of peace, those are red handed demons of war. Death! It is a war of extermination. These nations have not/been schooled in the art of parleying or the science of compro mise. Men, women, children, all are put to the sword. They will leave no tongue to tell the tale. There will be no weeping over the ruined city, no wailing over the fallen braves. Those who are in the citadel prepare for the last struggle. The aged seer cries aloud for revenge. As the madd sailants scale the walls they receive blow for blow and thrust for thrust. Time and again they are beaten back, but the foe is relentless and implace ble. The long watches of the night are heavy with fatigue. There has been an ominous quietude for several hours. The besieged strain their ears for some indication of the movements of the enemy.

A few feeble rays of light come struggling up from the east, and the fog hangs heavy on the distant river. Suddenly, like the first crash of thunder that announces the storm, comes the wild war whoop that chills the blood in the veins of the watchers. A plumed head rises above th walls and a face all hideous with war paint glares on the frightened inmates of the citadel. More and more appear, and yelling and hooting and brandishing their weapons, the red men enter. There are cries and groans and frantic endeavors to escape. Finally the form of the seer is seen struggling with half a dozen assailants. He stag gers, falls, fixes his glazing eyes on the morning sur as its glad light comes streaming over the hills, and he is dead. Oblivion turns her vacant stare on the book of traditions. With one stroke of her hand th writings are obliterated. She seals the book, and olding her arms, turus silently away. Filed among the musty archives of the ages, the book remain

The old citadel remains in its ruined state, an as the years roll by it becomes an object of super stition to the offspring of that race of conquero There is nobody to keep the records, and when after the lapse of centuries, DeSoto's mail clad war riors walk among the ruins, and the white race take the place of the red men, everything except the vagueness of legends regarding the old citadel is lost. The red men are forced from their happy hunting grounds, and the foremost of all the race of men inherit the land by right of conquest. . Then they disagree and there is a struggle over the in heritance. The great Republic springs into exist ence, and all the varied industries of this incom parable people begin to develop. Black men once more turn their superstitious eyes on the mound Then the sovereign states must needs go to war. and the bloody panorama unfolds before the ghosts of the dead centuries that hover about the old

This mound was a part of the princely domain of a middle Georgia planter. This planter owned a slave who was a miser. Such instances are not uncommon among the southern negroes. This negro was rather privileged above the ordinar; slaves, and his master allowed him to cultivate little patch on the mound and keep the proceed for himself. Many a handful of cotton and many a peck of peanuts did it take to accumulate a hoard of gold amounting to about three hundred dollars But it was done. No one knew the hiding place of this fund. The other negroes had a natural dislike for the miser who "wus so mighty cur'ous in e ways. At dead of night he would unearth his treasure and seek a safer spot for deposit. He gloated over is and listened with delighted ears to the jingle of the precious coin. Then came Wilson's cavalry leaving death and desolation in their train,

They learned of the poor negro's hoarded treas ure, and some of the troopers caught him and tried to force him to reveal his secret. In some way he escaped and fled in the night. After searching fo some time after the whirlwind of war had passed they found him wandering aimlessly about the lit-tle patch on the mound. He was rendered insane by the fright. When asked where was his money the reply would come sharp and short: "Hid on de moun'." He had forgotten its hiding place; and others tried in vain to assist him in finding the spot where it was buried. It is now a neglected place where quall shooting would be fine were it not for raitle-nakes that infest the nooks and craunies of the mound. 'Tis thus that Oblivion, with her vacapt stare, baffles sharp-eyed History. M. M. F.

Students Suspended From a Denominational College. COLUMBIA, S. It is to be hoped that the present legislature will be called upon to grant a charter to this road. If the road is built, it will come by the way of Highlands, N. Any one who is acquainted with the geography of northeast Georgia, can readily see that the building of this road would develop a section of country that has ever been deprived of immediate railroad facilities, and a section rich in mineral resources, timber, etc.

Soon after resuming work in the afternoon, the wagon was driven to the pile of poles, and one placed on it. The poles were about sixty feet long, and in hauling them about, the men with the wagon placed the front axle near the big end of the pole, and the rear axle about forty feet back. The pole was then chained to the two-parts of the wagon, and while it was being carried along did the work of a coupling pole or reach. When the wagon approached Mr. Holmes's store, 33s Decatur street, it met a street car and pulled to the right to pass. The crowd present quickly went to work to rescue the children, and as they took them out one by one, found them all hurt.

tion of the sections relating to specific taxes was begun.

A lengthy debate was engaged in on the section taxing anctioneers. Amendments were offered to the section exempting persons who auction goods without compensation. An amendment by Mr. Harrison, of Quitman, to that effect was adopted. The section as amended was then adopted.

Mr. Felton, of Macon; offered an amendment to the section taxing emigrant agents, making

The amendment provoked an interesting debate. The tax on emigrant agents has hereto-fore been five hundred dollars per annum, and a like amount is fixed in the bill.

Mr. Gordon, of Chatham, said that the amendment had not been proposed to the finance committee; but, had it been, it would doubtiess have been adopted. He thought it should be adopted by the house. Emigrant agents frequently failed io pay the tax. Should such failure in future be made a crime and be unnished by fine giving the information. punished by fine, giving the informer one-fifth of such fine, emigrant agents would proba-bly keep out of Georgia. by keep out of Georgia. The state wanted to keep its population, not to send it to other states.

Mr. Harrison, of Quitman, opposed the ameudment. He said that rights claimed by citizens of Georgia should not be denied citizens of otherstates. He lived near the line of Alabama and frequently found it necessary to go into that state to employ laborers. Alabamians should have the same right in Georgia. The general assembly had appointed an agent to solicit emigration from Germany. It would be inconsistent should Georgia refuse to allow others to solicit emigration from her conflues. He believed in allowing all men to have the fullest and freest means of seeking homes wherever they pleased. To give one-fifth of the fine contemplated in the amendment to the informer would be to offer inducements to unprincipled men to perjure themselves. The code provided that agents who failed to pay the tax should be punished. That was well enough, but to go further and provide for paying informers would be infamous.

ing informers would be infamous.

Mr. Arnheim, of Dougherty, also opposed the amendment. He regarded it as offering a promium to perjurers. Worthless negroes would organize themselves into bands and swear that organize themselves into bands and swear that certain men had attempted to induce them to emigrate. They would have such men at their mercy, and would succeed in nearly every case in getting the reward. He remembered such a case in his county. A stranger, a man from Colorado, was visiting the county. A party of infarnous scoundrels had him arrested upon the cheese that here were a minimal terms. the charge that he was an emigrant agent ply-ing his vocation without having part the tax. The man was innocent, but he had no proof. Rather than be subjected to the expense of coming from Colorado to stand a trial, he paid one hundred and fitzy dollars to settle the matter. He left the county feeling that he had been outraged. The amendment should not pass. The code already provided proper punishment for a failure to pay the tax. It would be a shame for the state of the tax. It would be a shame for the state of Georgia to provide the means of forming a class of petjured spies.

Mr. Simmons, of Sumter, said that the amendment ought not to pass. Nobody cared to see a class of scoundrelly informers formed in Georgia. He covered about the same ground covered by Mr. Harrison and Mr. Arnheim.

Mr. Berner, of Monroe, and Mr. Lamar, of Richmond, also opposed the amendment.

Mr. Felton, of Macon, and Mr. Felton, of Bibb, again spoke in favor of the amendment, insting that the farmers of the state should be inisting that the farmers of the state should be protected against the inroads of emigrant protected against the inroads of emigrant agents. If such agents were to be allowed in the state they should be made to pay the tax. As to giving informers part of the faces, the tax act required just that thing to be done in certain other cases. The procedure had been according to the cases. certain other cases. The precedent had been fixed. Why should it not be followed now?

Mr. Harrison rose to reply, as also did several other members, but Mr. Felton stopped further debate by withdrawing the amendment. The original section was then adopted.

Mr. Russell, of Clarke, moved to postpone the special order so that the report of the committee on the state of business in the general assembly might be considered. The motion was carried.

The report of the joint committee on the tate of business in the general assembly was It was identical with that which will be It was identical with that which will be found in the proceedings of the senate.

Mr. Russell, of Clarke, moved to adopt the resolution of Mr. Calvin, of Richmond, providing for a prolongation of the session for such a time after the constitutional period of forty days as may be necessary for the transaction of the public business of the state.

Mr. Harrison, of Quitman, opposed the resolution. He did not desire the general assembly to commit itself to an indefinite prolongation of the session. He moved to amend the resolution so that it would provide for an adjournment so that it would provide for an adjournment thirty days after the expiration of the constitu-tional period of forty days.

Mr. Brewster, of Harris, offered as a substi-tute a resolution to adjourn on the 13th instant.

Mr. Harrell, of Webster, moved to amend so as to fix the day of adjournment on the 21st as to fix the day of adjournment on the 21st instant. He afterwards withdrew his motion in favor of Mr. Harrison's amendment. Mr. Harrell thought the business could be finished within the next ten days. Many pending bills were useless.

Mr. Arnheim, of Dougherty, was in favor of Mr. Arnheim, of Dougherty, was in favor of Mr. Calvin's resolution. He thought it absolutely necessary to prolong the session. He reviewed the work of the general assembly, showing that every day had been fully occupied either in sessions or in committees. Forty days were not sufficient to transact the important business of the general assembly.

Mr. Harrison, of Quitman, said that he did not wish to criticise the business methods of the house, but he thought it unnecessary to prolong the session more than thirty days.

the house, but he thought it unnecessary to prolong the session more than thirty days.

Mr. DuBose, of Wilkes, was in favor of the amendment to extend the session thirty days.

Mr. Calvin of Richmond, hoped that his resolution would pass. It provided simply for prolonging the session, leaving the length of time to circumstances. He did not think a limit should be fixed. The session should continue until all the business was transacted. There had been no waste of time. Every member had been engaged every day during member had been engaged every day during the session. The business of the general assembly could not be transacted in forty days Mr. Gordon of Chatham, thought that the constitutional provision requiring local bills to be advertised caused the sessions to be prolonged. Members were sometimes thirty day-getting before the general assembly bills favors ed by their constituents. An adjourned session would prevent this trouble. Time was lost in the elections of judges and solicitors. Ten days were thus threwn away. People who condemned long sessions should remember these facts. They should remember the obstacles placed in the way of the general assembly by the constitution.

3. The charge, "that if a party has a forged instrument and passes it and utters it, the presumption of law is that he does it with a sumption of law is that he does it with a knowledge of the fact that it is a forgery; still gentlemen that is a presumption subject to be rebutted by proof or the facts and circumstances of the case, and while it is a presumption on the one hand, it would be subject to be rebutted by the evidence or the facts and circumstances of the case. After all, it would be for you to say what the truth of the matter is;" taken all together and read in the light of the entire charge and all the facts of the case, if too broad in a single item, is not such error as requires a new trial, espe-

in the light of the entire charge and all the facts of the case, if too broad in a single item, is not such error as requires a new trial, especially as the part of it objected to, is not specified in the ground of the motion on which alone error is assigned.

4. Now, read with the entire charge and in the light of the fact that deeds from 1836 up to a recent date all purported to have been attested by justices of the peace in Bibb county, was it error to charge as follows: "I will state that when the state puts before you a certificate from the executive department, if they have done so, showing who were in office in the county of Bibb when the deeds purported to have been made at the date." of these several deeds, showing no such officers or justices of the peace were in commission er in office in that county at the time of the date of the deeds, if it does show that, that raises a prima facia presumption that the deeds are forgaries. That makes out such a case as would cast the burden on the other side, so far as the question of forgery is concerned."

5. The evidence is overwhelming against the plaintiff in error, it it does not imperatively demand the verdict.

CLEVELAND'S SUPERIOR BAKING POWDER DOES NOT CONTAIN LIME, AMMONIA,

Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder, manufactured by Cleveland Brothers, Albany, N. Y., is absolutely pure and wholesome. It is made only of strictly pure Grape Cream of Tartar, Bicarbonate of Soda, and a small portion of wheat flour, and does not contain Ammonia, Alum, Lime, or any adulteration whatever. The Cream of Tartar is refined by a new process which frees it entirely from lime and every impurity, and is obtained in the pure crystals and ground in our own factory; the Bicarbonate of Soda is prepared expressly for us; and to ensure uniform and absolute purity of our baking powder all the ingredients are subjected to searching chemical analyses and none used unless proved to be perfectly pure. In confirmation of the above we publish the following from the able and reliable chemists of the New York Product Exchange: "We are analyzing all the Cream of Tartar used in the manufacture of Cleveland's Superior Baking Powder, and we hereby certify that it is practically chemically pure-testing as high as 99.95 per cent. and not less than 99.50 per cent. "From a hygienic point of view we regard Cleveland's Superior

Baking Powder as the ideal baking powder, composed as it is of pure Grape Cream of Tartar and pure Bicarbonate of Soda. "STILLWELL & GLADDING,

NEW YORK. December 7.—The stock market, today, again showed usual activity, but a strong undertone that was noticed for a long while back, ave place to a decided weakness. The downward tendency, while apparent early in the day, made very little progress until in the afternoon, when a decided shown occurred. very little progress until in the afternoon, when a decided slump occurred. An increasing stingency in the money maket, aided by realizing sales, was principally responsible for this. The room-traders, however, among which sentiment is at present decidedly bearish, seized an opportunity to hammer the market all round. Foreign buying was the principal obstruction to the decline, and materially aided in a strong reaction just previous to the close. There was heavy trading in Peacity again. close. There was heavy trading in Reading again. but there are no new developments. The pro-posed amalgamation between East Tennessee, Richmond and West Point, and Norfolk and Western railroads was the subject of the conference to day, and it is understood that little remains to be done beyond the arrangement of details, but while done beyond the arrangement of details, but while East Tennessee was strong in the morning Norfolk and Western was barely steady on the whole and Richmond and West Point neglected. They all felt the adverse influence of the afternoon and all yielded. The recommendation of the Western Union executive committe that there be no dividend caused a considerable selling of that stock. The opening this morning was decidedly weak, the first prices showing declines of from ½ to ½ per cent from last evening's final figures, the only exceptions being Louisville and Nashville and Western Union. Further declines were made in the early dealings, Canada-Southern being conspicuous. dealings, Canada Southern being conspicuous. THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Special to The Constitution. CHICAGO, December 7-The wheat market was opened this morning at last night's prices and until 11 o'clock May delivery fluctuated between 8.5% and 85% cents, if then rose on good buying to 85%, ruled steady for a short time and then took a downward plunge, not staying its course until 85% cents had been touched, which was the closing figure at 1 p. m. In the afternoon the bears continued to hammer prices and considerable "long" property was unloaded.

The price of May dropped to 84% or 2% cents under the highest figures of last week. The feeling became quite bearish toward the close of trad-ing and the market finished at nearly inside prices.

Corn was held up firmly early in the session, May delivery touching 43% cents, but when the weakness in wheat began to assert itself option declined to 43% and closed at that price bid. Receipts are only moderate but shipping demand ontinues only moderate.
Oats ruled quiet and easy, declining a fraction and closing at inside figures.

Frovisions ruled strong most of the session.

May pork advanced to $11.65 with considerable trading at that figure, but fell off to $11.40 in sympathy with other markets and closed easy.

Constitution Reporters THE INVESTIGATING COMMITTEE.—The investigating committee of the legislature appointed to inquire into the charges against Messrs. Rankin and Fain will have a meeting tomorrow afterneon at 3 o'clock.

He Is Out.—Mr. John Ryan was out for a few hours yesterday, shaking hands with his many friends. He does not look worsted by his severe fall, but says that he feels quite sere yet. Mr. Ryan thought he was dropping a mile while descending from the top of the building to the floor, a distance of eighteen feet.

ALWAYS READY TO GO.—Since Sunday morning Chief Joyner has had the fire department equipped with a double supply of horses. He knew that two horses would not be able to drag the reels and truck through the heavy snow, and doubled the teams. Two horses are kept in the stalls and two are always ready hitched. Every six hours the teams are changed.

The State Courts.—Very little business was transacted in the superior court yesterday. The jury in the case of Addie Howard vs. the Richmond and Danville railroad company, suit to recover $10,000 damages for the killing of her husband, returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $2000. The case of Legis Willer. plaintiff for $2,090. The case of Jessie Miller vs. the city of Atlanta and the Metropolitan street railroad company, suit to recover damages for personal injuries, was begun. The city court transacted no business, but adjourned until today.

Thrown From His Horse.—Dr. William C White was thrown from his horse yesterday at ternoon near the corner of Mitchell and For syth streets, and was seriously hurt. Dr. Whit lives near the Chattahoochee river and came to the city yesterday morning to at-tend the superior court as a wit-ness. Just as he reached Forsyth street some one struck his horse with a snow ball. The animal made a quick jump, throwing the doc-tor. His fall was a hard one, resulting in the dislocation of his left shoulder.

A SUDDEN DEATH.—Mrs. Margaret Goode, an old woman living near the Western and Atlantic railroad, on May street, died very suddenly yesterday morning. Mrs. Goode had been in bad health a long time, but had never been confined to her bed. Yesterday morning, after breakfast, she stepped out upon a veranda in the rear of the house and remained a few minutes. Later in the day she began to complain of severe pains up her chest. The pains plain of severe pains in her chest. The pains grew more violent and a physician was sent for, but before he arrived the old lady died. Her death was due, it is thought, to heart dis-

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.—Miss Hattie Leyton and Mr. George C. Khrome were united in marriage last night at the Pendleton house, on Hunterstreet, the Rev. Mr. Hughes officiating. The marriage was somewhat romantic The bride's parents five near Cleveland, Tenn., while the groom records his name in the Birmingham city directory. They have been engaged for several months, and were to have been married in Cleveland on the 22nd of last month. Mr. Khrome left Birmingham for Cleveland and came by Atlanta to make some purchases, and was taken sick soon after his arrival. He rapidly grew worse, and as the day appointed for his wedding was but forty-eight hours off he sent a telegram to the young lady. The next train brought her and her mother to Atlanta. Mr. Khrome had quite a seige of it, and yesterday being the first day he was able to be out, a minister was sent for and they were married. ORANGE BLOSSOMS .- Miss Hattie Leyton and Suffering Ended by Cuticura.

A BOUT SEVEN YEARS AGO I HAD A HUMOR A break out upon my face; it started in a small holete and looked like the sing of a bee; then it spread and looked like a ringworm, and became very painful. I at once went to one of the best doctors in the city, and he could do me no good. No less than twelve of the best doctors have had a triel at my face and all of them failed. I will not give you a list of their names, but will say that they were from Bosion, New York and Maine, also from England, France and Canada. I have been a hotel cook and steward for years. In the summer I cook at watering places, that is why I have had an opportunity of being among goost doctors. They could not enter my face, and I had given up all hores of ever being among goost doctors. They could not enter my face, and I had given up all hores of ever being any better. Last June I went to Mosechead Lake, Maine, to cook for the season. My face was so had I did not like to be seen. At the lake I had no required a face of the season. They face is all will all the season. My face were healed up. I used it all the season. My face is all well and no scars to be seen. I have recommended it to a number, and in every case it has cured them. It would take a great deal of money to put me back where I was oneyear ago, providing I did not know what your Curicura would do. I shall recommend it as long as I live, and shall ever remain.

I dectored with quite a number of doctors, but to no avail. I am willing to make affidavit to the truth of the statement.

ATLANTA'S POPULATION

FACTS AND FIGURES OBTAINED

An Actual Count Shows the Population to be White 41,903; Colored, 28,943; Total, 90,848-Omissions in the Count-Prosperous Condition of Business-Vacant Houses, Etc.

Messis. Norwood & Connelly, publishers of the Atlanta city directory, will have their work ready for the public on the 15th instant. The di-rectory has been prepared with great care, and it is job rooms never sent out a handsomer work.

A CONSTITUTION reporter had a talk with Major Notwood yesterday, and obtained from him some interesting information Regarding the method of preparing the directory Major Norwood said:

Regarding the method of preparing the directory Major Norwood said:

"The greatest care was exercised. Our agents visited every house in Atlanta, and made the most minute inquiries regarding the population. There are 18,028 names in the directory. Deducting 1,122 names of firms the total number of individual names is 16,826. These are the names of heads of families. The names of members of families are not civen, but the directory contains a careful census of them. After obtaining the name of the head of a family an exact count of the other members was made, in order that the total population of the city might be obtained. The figures in the directory are absolutely correct, but they do not show the total population. This is due to the fact that in quite a large number of instances when our agents called at houses they found the immates absent from the city. In many instances calls were made as often as ten times. I am satisfied that had these persons been at home, the total population would have been swelled several hundreds. I mention these facts for two reasons: First, the count in the directory is setual, it is not an estimate. Second, Atlanta's population is really greater than is shown in the directory."

"What is the population in detail?"

"The number of individual names of heads of white families, in the directory is setual, it is not an estimant of members in those families is 2,296. This, exclusive of absentees and certain others whose names could not possibly be obtained, gives a total white population of 41,967. The number of individual names of heads of colored families is 2,390. This gives a total colored persons together, the total number of enombers in those families is 2,390. This gives a total colored persons together, the total pulation is of 5,816. It is proper to add that this was the population on the 15th of September, 196, the day the count was completed."

"The population in 1885 was estimated at 70,000. You will observe that even with the exceptions I

"What other information of interest can you give?"
"The population in 1885 was estimated at 60,000. You will observe that even with the exceptions I have mentioned, there has been an increase in the population of $86$. Really, I have no doubt but that the increase has been more than 1,000. The directory includes only a small part of West End—only those inhabitants of that suburb who do business in the city. If Edgewood, Kirkwood, Belton, and other surburban places, were included, places whose people are absolutely dependent upon Atlanta, the population would be largely increased. It is absolutely certain that the population of Atlanta is rapidily and steadily increasing." "What do you think of the condition of Atlanta's the city?"

"To be exact, we found 624. You must remember "To be exact, we found 624. You must remember that our count, or most of it, was made in the summer, just after the saleons were closed. I am prepared to say that many of the houses vacant then are occupied new. I do not know what the exact number of houses now vacant is, but I have no doubt but that it is small."

It may be reiterated that the figures in the directory are absolutely correct. No names have been counted twice, and many names were unavoidably not counted at all. Among the latter, Major Norwood said there was quite a large number of young men, who kept out of the way in order that the collector of street tax might not obtain their names.

Mr. Joseph Hirsch, president of the Georgia division, said yesterday:
"The convention will be one of more importance to Atlanta and the state than most people imagine. The drummers are a power in the land, and they keep the business world a-moving. There will be five or six hundred of the boys with us, and I feel sine that our people will extend to them a cordial welcome. So far, we have met with every encouragement."

The Building Inspectors Write a Card.

ATLANTA, Ga., December 7, 1886.—Editors Constitution—Gentlemen: In your issue of th.5th inst., your reporter publishes what purports to be an interview with Mr. W. O. Jones, in which he makes Mr. Jones say that after the fire at his stable the building inspectors critically examined the walls of his stable and pronounced them perfectly safe. This is all a missike. The building inspectors were never called upon to inspect the walls or any other part of Mr. Jones's stable, consequently no such report was ever made, the duty of the building inspectors being to examine buildings considered dangerous, when ordered to do so the mayor, and report to him. The publication of such statement is acculated to do as a serious injuly reflecting on our integrity. We think you ought to publish this in your paper, thereby giving our denial the same publicity as the above named incorrect statement has had.

Respectfully, Calvin Fay, ch'm B. Ins.

HON. W. D. RELLEY. He Passes Through Atlanta on His Way

Hon. W. D. Kelley spent last night in the city, and was called upon by quite a number of preminent citizens. Since his visit to the south in 1807, the revolution in progress therein passed his belief. In one county in Alabama he saw more fencing today, than could be seen in the critic trip from Nashville to New Orleans in 1867. The people are awake to their interests, and seem to have thrown off the past. He cultirged on the protective tariff as the salvation of the south as it had been of the north.

larged on the protective tariff as the salvation of the south as it had been of the north.

"Why do we want a protective tariff?" he asked. "In orders hat the people may have the privilege of following something else besides making cotton. He stated that the colored laborer in the iron works of the south received more money for his work than the average farmer of Tennessee or Ahabama makes in a whole year, for when credit prices are paid for provisions, and the guano bill paid, there is little left to the farmer's share. Protection, he believed, would enhance the price of cotton and thus benefit the farmer. The south needed more mustries. The savings of working people in the New England states deposited in banks would buy every acre of land in Alabama; pay for every mile of railway; buy every locomotive in the sate, and have a hundred million round silver dollars to their credit still. The north was prosperous because of its diversification of industries and because everybody worked. Under free trade women in Belgium toil at man's work for 20 cents a day and men renan's work for 20 cents a day and men re American markets and out of competition with our wheat. Cannot manufactures be promoted under free trade? Not while the wages for labor are as low in Eu-

as far back as 1812, America, under the benign protection, and whenever there was free trade there was depression and even bankruptey.

The policy for America was a protective tariff.
That it was best for all—the farmer, the merchant the mechanic the laborer chant, the mechanic, the laborer.

He urged to vote for protective tariff men to represent the people-in congress.

The social courtesies extended to Mr. Kelley, irrespective of party, pleased him very much. When asked if the present session would attempt tariff legislation, he answered decisively: "No. The free traders may talk for the purpose of embarrassing Mr. Randall, or some officer of the government who is opposed to them, but that is all. He sold a valuable truck and dairy farm near the city for a fine price, and showed what the public did not know—that he is a first-class auctioneer, not excelled by any in the city. Should he put himself forward in this line he will make reputation and give satisfaction in selling real estate at auction.

Fearful Outrages Due to Deranged Brains and What Causes Them. In looking over the columns of a recent daily raper, we found the accounts of an insane negro who took possession of the smoking car on one railroad train; of a rich mine owner, also Insane, who created a panic in the sleeping car of another train, and of a case of arson and the terrible murder of two unfortunate women by an insane farmer. All these incidents occurred on the same day, and they are occuring nearly every day, showing the terrible increase of insanity all over America. There are men and women whom we see every day, who act peculiar, and we frequently call them "cranks." The community permits them to live and move around among people, but there is no knowing when some sudden frenzy may seize them or when they may become in-flamed by liquor and do some terrible damage to somebody. Indeed, there seems to be a tendency on the part of very many people to be-come maddened at times. The stomach gets out of order, the head aches, the body pains and the nerves become irritated. It is then that people are in the condition such as the ady was when she said, "I feel as if I should fly." People do wrong to permit these feeling; they do wrong in not checking them at once, for when they continue, they lead to nervousness, exhaustion, insomnia and often insanity. The wife of a very prominent gentleman residing in Charleston, was in this depletable condition, which had become worse from the excitement of the earthquake, and her friends felt seriously for her safety. For the contractive she began to use a gentle vet powerher friends felt seriously for her safety. For-tunately, she began to use a gentle yet power-ful medicine which strengthens the nerves, enriches the blood and puts the mind in a healthy condition, and both she and her friends are rejoicing today over what Volina Cordial has accomplished for her. By a wonderful toning process she has been made fresh and vigorous instead of exhausted; bright and cheerful instead of with a clouded brain, and her experience may be repeated to advantage by thousands of others throughout the entire land.

It is a serious thing, to think how easily the delicate machinery of the mind can be thrown out of order. The least irregularity or tendency toward these morbid feelings should be noticed and checked at once. Any man or woman can be made insane under certain influences, but any man or woman can place the body and mind in a healthy and vigorous state by proper care, by the use of Volina Cordial, and it is the part of wisdom to do so, and do so at once.

In response to the article published in The Constitution and other papers, signed "Spectator," giving an exparte statement as to the evidence in this case, it is sufficient to state that, after the presented of the pre this case, it is suincient to state that, after the pres-bytery field given the prosecution nearly a year to work up their cause, and spent an entire-month in hearing it, etc., and having the fullest opportunities for eliciting all the facts bearing upon this case, not one of the twenty-nine specifications was sustained by the presbytery, and of the thirty members of the pres-bytery not one elder sustained the charge.
